I used to come here to think I used to watch the crowds of animals and clowns spitting shortwave, dripping ink half a worry here, half a note there you looked so beautiful Anita Ekberg in the fountain such a spell on you crashing wildly through the waltz

any other time but now when I'm looking in, not out any other time your tongue would fill my mouth I was wrong to try
but I thought I'd find my reflection in your eyes but now I come here to be seen my usual table here at the bottom of the stairs they keep their steely eyes on me half a wonder here, half a glance there you look so beautiful Anita Ekberg in the fountain

nature's chemicals roundly wound up in the warmth
