Duncan, where have you gone?
It's been so, so long
Has London broken your heart?
It happens to the best of us

Duncan, the most real God,
Flows through, through you
There's someone, for you to love,
Whom you will find in due time

Do you feel like you don't really know yourself?
Cause the people you meet, they just seem someone else
And now your biggest dream is to be just a stranger,
you pass on the street

Duncan, send us a sign,
That you're all, all right
Have you sunken further below,
The coldest depth you've ever known

They've raised you the best that they possibly could And still you've felt unloved, and always misunderstood
And now your biggest dream is to be just a stranger,
you pass on the street

Duncan, where have you gone?
