I stepped out into the night
Put my feet down on the wet patio floor
The sky's air had been cooling
And steam rose from everywhere

I could feel drops of rain slipping off tree's leaves
Splattering to the ground
It's always misty after a summer pour

And I'll remember turning around and looking out
And staring in, where I'm focusing [Incomprehensible]
beautiful girl

When I said, "Oh, who is this?
Where was she all those crazy years?"
And, oh, who is this?
Where was she when my heart couldn't take its beat?

I sipped down warm ginger ale
Drew back a breath
And headed over to see about this girl

Oh, I couldn't say a thing and oh, I stared open and wide
And I connected with her eyes to feel my gut fall
through the floor

And, oh, who is this?
Where was she all those crazy years?
And, oh, who is this?
Where was she when my heart couldn't take its beat?

Oh, who is this?
Where was she all those crazy years?
And, oh, who is this?
Where was she when my heart couldn't take its beat?
