I'll go, walking around in the dark of the day.
Right when everything's quiet,
see stars as they change.

Trees sway,
sank to the street, drinking puddles of rain.
Right on the corner of your own street, where we once stayed.

Seems so quiet,
can't deny this.

No, but once there was music that swam in the air.
Crazy, laughing at dishes that smash in the sink.
A howlin' wolf on the radio sings you to sleep.
Right now, sun comin' up through the cracks in the trees.

Thought you'd save me from myself, with love.
Love, but alone is how I stay,
from the world to the grave.

Thought you'd save me from myself, with love.
Love, but alone is how I stay,
from the world to the grave,
that's how I stay.
From the world to the grave,
that's how I stay.

From the world to the grave.
