The sky grows bigger everyday
And the other week I hopped on a train Cutting through state lines to come to you as the crow flies and out there in the offing Everything was melon and orange

Chorus:

Did you know my sweet Yeah, that I once took the liberty of Watching you in your sleep?
i rolled over and over trying to touch your knees underneath the sheets

And I just wanted you to know That every pool of water reminds me of you
Is that all right?
I hope you think it's cool cause sometimes a train can't go as fast as I want it to

Chorus

Yeah, I rolled over and over Trying to touch your knees yeah-ah Woah, underneath the sheets
Tryin to touch your knees

Everything seemed a little easier
When we weren't 100 miles apart
The person across from me sitting in her train seat Reminded me of you and I looked out past her cheeks Through the glass-light conduit
The sun has sunk already disappeared into New Jersey
Oh, why don't they have phones on these things?

What can I do
I'm stuck thinkin' about you

Chorus
