Leo Sayer & Frank Farrell
oh it's twelve o'clock on the old grey wall
yet another year
'75 is here
I hear all the people celebrating it's another year
darkness, darkness
inside my head
I'm on my own again
that's what I think I said this place is just a one-horse town so let the rain fall down year and year again I'll be sitting here reflecting how nothing's changed but am I still the same people blow up all around me yet I remain
nothing's changed
another day begins
the same old same again it's like some movie scene I know it all frame by frame I'll try to figure out what it means some other day
now my diary
is looking back at me
it's another year
'76 is here
I'm watching all the people celebrating another year
it's another year
