Leo Sayer & Frank Farrell have you seen the old men that lean on the walls
of salvation halls
in the streets of your town you can't have missed the vagrant
he is the rubble he is the trouble you want to remove in the parks about sundown he makes his bed his shoes are a pillow for his head have you seen the young men that look so old they'd rather have the cold dark lonely road have you ever wondered why do they go leaving the tv and the automo you can see them hailing trucks down the open road you wave your thumb and you hop on board you ain't got no keeper you don't need a friend I betcha wish you were the same yeah I betcha wish you were the same
we lean on the walls
we're just a little shady we get a little crazy
we lay our heads our shoes are our pillow the grass our bed
don't need no keeper and don't need no friend
