(Will I tell you how it is? Well, I'll tell you how it Is)

If she could cry
I'm sure she would
The way you treated her I never understood
If she could cry
I'm sure she would
The way you treated her I never understood if she could

She never noticed the ways thing change
From a rock to a hard place
She stayed the same
Through all four seasons
She won't complain
She had good reason
And even more shame

And if she could cry
I'm sure she would
The way you treated her I never understood
If she could cry
I'm sure she would
The way you treated her I never understood if she could

The bad times came slowly
One plank at a time
Now you're free to be lonely
And she's free to cry
The flames are fading
But you don't care
She don't mean nothing
She's not even there

And if she could cry
I'm sure she would
The way you treated her I never understood
If she could cry
I'm sure she would

The way you treated her I never understood if she could

I see here there standing tall
Waiting and waiting and waiting
She knows you'll never call
You taken her for granted that's what you done
So come home. Come home.

And if she could cry
I'm sure she would
The way you treated her I never understood
If she could cry
I'm sure she would
could

If she could cry
If she could cry
If she could cry
I never understood if she could
