"God Candy"

It's quiet outside, the trees are still.
Alive and awake, I search for her.
The wind's asleep, there's still a chill.
Is this the life? Or is my vision blurred?

How could she not save me?
She's as pure as a baby.
Could not her goodness enslave me?
My direction caves in me.

She's just a little taste of God Candy.
She's just a little taste of God Candy.

It feels so right, this warmth beneath my bones.
Oh, tell me Lord, how'd You make her lips so soft?
And through her eyes You pick up the phone.
And in her touch, my doubt is lost.

Then an angel appears.
She whispers in my ear.
A greater Love is near.
And it all becomes clear.

She's just a little taste of God Candy.
She's just a little taste of God Candy.
Candy.

I asked Him once if she could save me.
He said, "I already sent My Baby."
"What more do you want?"
"What more do you want?"

She's just a little taste of God Candy.
She's just a little taste of God Candy.
She's just a little taste of God Candy.
She's just a little taste of God Candy.
