"Cold War"

See me through your diamond eyes
Caught every corner till it feels bright
I never thought that I'd live for a moment like this And it's a cold, cold night

And when I wake I hear the birds singing out my name But I hear nothing at all that matters much but the slightest touch
From the cold, cold night

I see the roses that fallen at my feet
Fast as the water beneath me
I can see everything new for the first time
With you by my side
Color me in black and white; color me in black and white
Color me in black and white; color me in black and white

Tell me what my future holds Lost in the dark and I don't know, know where the light goes
It all seems lost and my mind feels torn
It's a cold, cold world

And when I wake where my hand still shakes
From a lost desire to make a real change
An honest man with his hand in the sand
It's a cold, cold world
Oh it's a cold, cold world

I see the roses that fallen at my feet
Fast as the water beneath me
I can see everything new for the first time
With you by my side
Color me in black and white; color me in black and white
Color me in black in white; color me in black and white

And when I wake to these choice I made Stands hand in hand with every mistake

I wish I could see and dream of it sometimes You color me in black in white; color me in black and white
Color me in black in white; color me in black and white (Color me in black and white; color me in black and
white,
Color me in black and white)
Oh it's a cold, cold night
