I woke up late this morning the sunlight shining in my eyes and I almost forgot what it felt like to be free I wanted you to show me
All the things I'd never seen
And now I'm trying to make ends meet

How could you do that to me?
My eyes turn red with envy
For something only you could've taken from me
We were young and stupid
I know there's only so much we could do But there's nothing I'd have rather given you than myself

But still why don't you tell me
He wasn't the only one you slept with Now I'm living life in hell

Then I woke up from that dream and I saw you sleeping next to me God, it looked so fucking good
I wanted to hold you Say the things I used to say But things don't seem the way they should

As time goes by I realize a needless worry in my eyes
I guess it's so hard Cause I still love you
