Lost again

lyca's parents go away

over the valleys deep

they are lost again

arm in arm for seven days

they traced the desert ways

they are lost again

seven nights they sleep and dream

they see their child

captured in the desert wild

lost again

till before their way

a crouching

lion lay

follow me... he said

please weep not for the maid

in my palace deep,

your lyca lies deep asleep

they look in his eyes

his eyes filled with deep surprise and wondering behold

a spirit armed in gold
on his head a crown,
on his shoulders down
flowed his golden hair.
gone was all their care.
and they followed
where the vision led,
lost again
and saw their sleeping child among tigers wild.
