"Thirteen"

Someone keep her from the shadows
Fading out and hurting deep inside
Someone keep her from the fire
Burning hot but still her fingers seek

Too weak to weep
Too numb to speak
Too tired to sleep
And even though someone could see she'd still be
Far away and out of reach
Too far to reach

Something's wrong she just can't hide it
Spinning around and around inside her veins

Slit them open and it's over
Left for others to try to wash the stains

Too weak to weap
Too numb to speak
Too tired to sleep
And even though someone could see she'd still be
Far away and out of reach

No one who cares no one
