the worlds flowers like a carpet of crimson red as one scatter and toss through the air sorrow and sadness are born there from the darkness that streams underneath ah, are hearts only meant to lie? are people just puppets of fate

{only to embrace those we love and protect those small and precious today again some one shouts that out sacrificing even their life to smolder in the midst of time with that instants kiss.} in this city stained with greed there is only wind blowing towards the sky all that is left of trampled love is the tear left in the palm of my hand ah, were smiles only meant to sunder? every one has their wounded hearts

[I want to protect those timid creatures those who kneel in prayer I'll even carve a cross in my chest to believe in something unstoppable and the irrepressible spirit now and forever]

the clouds disperse the stars are seen the wind stills the birds sing the ocean shines the heavens thaw the night ends I feel you
