The little freak opens his eyes to the world

In a dark corner of the maze

All alone since the day he was born

His breathless mother can never love

He could never understand the hate

And the blaze of anger within his heart

Breathing was the pain killing his mind

Tears in his veins instead of blood

Day after day another falling dream

Broken hopes and forgotten feelings

He must survive in this poor life

Life was a game - End of this game

Meaningless reasons - Unclear visions

Paradoxes in his mind

Maybe this are the reasons of his life

He'll be rising through the shadows

Enemies hidden in the shadows

Endless hatred in their eyes

Just he wants a piece of freedom

And so he marches toward sunrise

With the hunchback of the past

Once he set off - No turning back

Long way to light - Long way from the dark

No place to hide - He must fight

Meaningless reasons - Unclear visions

Paradoxes in his mind

Maybe this are the reasons of his life

He'll be rising through the shadows

Meaningless reasons - Unclear visions

Paradoxes in his mind

Maybe this are the reasons of his life

He'll be rising through the shadows
