We always said,
In a different time, different place,
We'd find a way to make it work, make it work

Now it's been 2 years, and many have passed through my life, but I always come back to you

I've been waiting so long, for you, to find out what you want,
I've been playing around, too, but I am already done,
And it's burning, it's burning, when I think of you
I've been waiting so long for you, for you...

With each day passing, I find my self asking, what I've been waiting for Common sense says leave it, you don't need it anymore,
But we both know, we won't move on if we don't try to see this through, for what it's worth Cuz I always come back to you

I've been waiting so long, for you, to find out what you
want,
I've been playing around, too, but I am already done,
And it's burning, it's burning, when I think of you
I've been waiting so long for you, for you...

But how do you know
If anything is worth the fight, how do I know That I'm not the only one, holding on But the moment I see your smile, I always remember why I waited, Waited

I've been waiting so long for you, to find out what you
want,
I've been playing around too, but I am already done
And it's burning, it's burning, when I think of you
I've been waiting so long for you, for you...
We always said in a different time, different place, we'd find a way to make it work
