You and me, we drink red, it's the color of the wine that distorts my head
You and me, we see blue, like the ocean or your eyes that I drown into

You and me go green
We give the love that we got when we make it, then we sleep through the morning
I remember back in the day, strumming on my ukelele
You would share your absinthe to get me to stay

Without you I'm just white, baby
I kinda thought tonight you'd save me
Your colors shine so bright lately
Let's try and make it right, come paint me now

You and me burn yellow It's a curious magic spell, only pessimists believe in hell
Sorry but I have to chime in (I screwed it up again)
Love is a virtue and never a sin

Without you I'm just white, baby
I kinda thought tonight you'd save me
Your colors shine so brightly lately
Let's try and make it right, come paint me

Without you I'm just white, let's color outside the lines
Conformity just leads to a decline, believe me
How can your colors shine so bright?
They're blinding me in both of my eyes
A little something like a surprise for you, baby

Without you I'm just white, baby
I kinda thought tonight you'd save me
Your colors shine so brightly lately
Let's try and make it right, come paint me
