I hope to hell,
That you've thought about what you've done
'Cos every war you fought was only for your ego and your pride
I prayed for you,
To be forgiven by everyone
And every word you hurled would always turn to violence in your eyes

It seems too far for us to go
And we will hunt you down

What if I told you to read between the lies
And I was never really by your side
What if I told you I've felt it for a while
And I was never really
I was never really in your life

Forgive me, God,
For everything that I've become
But then again we men were penned the same as you and your design
I'm sorry, Lord,
That I don't believe in you
It's time to rise outside the lines that tie us to this ageing lie

It seems to far for us to go
And we will hunt you down

What if I told you to read between the lies
And I was never really by your side
What if I told you I've felt it for a while
And I was never really
I was never really in your life

You were never real
And I will never follow
You were never real
And I will never follow you

What if I told you to read between the lies
And I was never really by your side
What if I told you I've felt it for a while
And I was never really
I was never really in your life
