You say that it was easy being unconfident in life But you put your trust in every single feeling in your mind
You touched the sky with all the fingers of both your honest hands
And like a child you fell down without messages to send

Don't forget to check
The distance that you'll take

Fly down because brightness makes you blind and steals your breathe You think that every second that you don't waste makes you faster
Close your wings and come back to the only life to live
You know that every thing that you can have is here in this place

You lied with yourself being full of chances in your life
And choosing randomly the first one to the world of lies You touched the sky with all the fingers of both your sparkling hands
And like a stone you fell down with that noise that you can't stand

Don't forget to check
The distance that you'll take Don't forget to keep The promise that you made Promise that your name Won't put in the shame

Fly down because brightness makes you blind and steals your time Close your wings and come back to the only place to live
