the sky blistered red, shots ring overhead.
i'm scaling walls that the soldiers built to muffle out
your screams.
the message was dislocated, misconveyed,
incinerated.
in the wake of war just listen for the flood.

the arthritis in us all is choking me out.
it's spilling me.

maybe you could finally be the one who reaches in and
saves me from the flood.
collapse. this is out last chance. there's no time for
relapse.
just listen for the flood.
if not us, can i just save you?

can't you hear the bombs are calling all our old habits
their own?
a sniper patiently awaiting me in every catacomb, are
you scared girl?
wont you be my assassin?
hunted down for the last time and carried you home.

the arthritis in us all is choking me out.

maybe you could finally be the one who reaches in and
saves me from the flood.
collapse. this is our last chance, there's no time for
relapse.

bring on the love, 'cause here comes the flood.
bring on the love, 'cause here it comes.

we must have been seduced by the calm of the isle as
we tied our wrists,
our wrists too tight in the shallow.

maybe you could finally be the one who finally reaches out and saves me from the flood.
relapse now.
if not us, can i just save you?
