At the journey's end
A new life is waiting
When you move across the bend
Your life will start anew
And the road
That you follow
Will wind until and end
And you'll find yourself Starting an adventure once again

When your life takes a turn
And all hope disappears
And the road that you seek
Is a trail of falling tears?

At the journey's end
A new life is waiting
When you move across the bend
Your life will start anew
And the road
That you follow
Will wind until and end
And you'll find yourself Starting an adventure once
again

When the sun
Stops shining
And the moon glows no more
And the only thing to See is the long and winding shore,

When you see the destination
That is blocked for none to see
And the only thing to do
Is to run, and to flee

At the journey's end
A new life is waiting
When you move across the bend
Your life will start anew
And the road

That you follow
Will wind until and end
And you'll find yourself Starting an adventure once
again

When the road ahead disappears
From sight
And you try to live with all your might Look up look on
Your life is at an end
And the sweet
Gray Havens will take
You home once again
