I'm sorry if I'm wrong

I wake up with a tear from the past to begin what we can change
I want to be only what you fear Going through this again and again and again, this is our last time
I'm not saying your suggestion is wrong,
I am only tired of standing complaints over nothing

Going through this again and again
I can't stand your complaints over nothing
You should be glad for the things you have and celebrate
Your existence

I'm sorry if I'm wrong
But an enemy is supposed to be an outward threat
In this time in our world I have learned That people are really their worst enemy

I know this is comical 'cause this song is obviously a complaint
With your coherence it's nothing but a lie

I wake up with a tear from the past to begin what we
can change
It's time we look holistically on our world, not only care for ourselves

Going through this again and again
I can't stand your complaints over nothing
celebrate
Your existence
Through this again and again and again
Through this again and again and again
