When the sun turns cold and starts to fade
And you don't know where your bed is made
And there's a hazy glow you cannot save
Memories flood like acid rain

When the sun turns red and starts to hurt
And you know what was said was undeserved
All the jealous cries of the misunderstood
Currency of the restrained

What I wouldn't give
What I could never give
I would have given to you
I swear I would have tried
To have you in my life
To make you happy

Chorus:
But you break everything you touch
For me it was too much
Hoped it would make me
Brighter,
Stronger

But you took away my light
'Till I was left with night
And dreams that just grew
Longer,
Harder

Verse 2:
When the sun turns red and starts to hurt
And you know what was said was undeserved
All the jealous cries of the misunderstood
Currency of the restrained

What I wouldn't give
What I could never give
I would have given to you
I swear I would have tried
To have you in my life

To make you happy

Chorus:

But you break everything you touch
For me it was too much
Hoped it would make me
Brighter,
Stronger

But you took away my light
Harder,
Longer

Bridge:

They will fall like roses, like roses - X4

Your words fell like acid rain
I would block them when they came
Now I let them melt on me
And bring me positivity

You don't know just what you've done
You don't know who I've become
I've become somebody else
I have used it for myself

I have used it to be free
I have used what you gave me

Jealous cries they're misunderstood
I have used them for my good

So let them fall
And let them come
Let them know damage not done
Let them see
This is the hope
Let them know I want them

And they will fall
Like roses, like roses
They will fall
