"Trust No One"

She's writing on the walls
She's tearing every page
You can trust no-one people never change
As his words come undone
She started to shout
You put your hands on her face
You tried to drown out the sound
He can't quite understand
Why he cries when he's done
He resented his father
Now his time has come
He needs some help
To understand

He can't see it happening until it's in her eyes
You can trust no-one people never change
She's writing on the walls
She's tearing every page
You can trust no-one people never change

She's huddled in the dark
The room starts to spin
Trying to drown out the thought
She'd rather feel nothing
He's covering the doorway
He says he's in love
There are so many little pieces
Love's not enough
He needs some help
To understand

He can't see it happening until it's in her eyes
You can trust no-one people never change
She's writing on the walls
She's tearing every page
You can trust no-one people never change

She's writing on the walls
She's tearing every page
You can trust no-one people never change
He can't see it happening until it's in her eyes

The floods won't stop and the sun won't rise
She's writing on the walls
She's tearing every page
You can trust no-one people never change
He can't see it happening until it's in her eyes
You can trust no-one people never change
People never change
