Hades on the earth
Condemned cities
From evil populations
Violence, fatal crimes
Chaos will lead us to destruction
The streets lost it's freedom to be crossed
Imprisonment at any time
When darkness takes it's proper place
Fear closing in
When the scenes terrorize honest citizens
Disgust multiplies
Serious acts are committed every day
Fighting to survive in this labirinth
Of stone and steel
Always unaware when and where
The assault can actually occur
CHORUS
Curse of the damned cities
Crucial habitats
Following the way of criminal instincts
Curse of the damned cities

Unrighteous dwelling

Decaying towards it's uncontrollable destiny

Dreams of civilization

Of peace and harmony, lies far away

Are you alone in this fight

To correct those corrupted societies

Justice is a word that is fading real fast

Guilty running free as the victims are suffering

From the fact that there is no escape

Feeling that their security is not strong enough yet

Thefts, rapes, murders growing to a numerous rate

We never seem to learn that this is an endless war

Is the economy provoking it

Or is it just the ignorant side of a human being

Evil suppress intermittently every line

Haunting frequently

The streets are the battlefield

To those individual warriors

Where each man is like a country

Fighting each other in a conventional war

Mandatory action of survival

CHORUS

Curse of the damned cities

Crucial habitats

Following the way of criminal instincts

Curse of the damned cities
Unrighteous dwellings
Decaying towards it's uncontrolled destiny
Brutality growing, it never stops
For centuries it seems to be getting worse
Harshly tumultuous mobs
Is home a safe place
If now the danger is spreading across the land
Like an epidemic without any curse
We will never learn from our mistakes
The more we stop, the more will emerge
The experience are the lesson to make us fear

CHORUS

Curse of the damned cities
Crucial habitats
Following the way of criminal instincts
Curse of the damned cities
Unrighteous dwelling
Decaying towards it's uncontrollable destiny
