Fake '50s clothes

Fake '50s food

Classic gas-guzzling dream cars

In more ads on the tube

Fake home-made cookies

Like mommy used to make

Nostalgia for an age

That never existed

Do you remember

Art-deco knick-knacks and flings

The stars on the silver screen

Made you forget Hooverville

View the world

Through Time-Life and Nick at Nite

Nostalgia for an age

That never existed

All the stars had a pretty face

Children and Negroes knew their place

Blocks of happy families

With moms and dads all in love

Or are these wholesome memories

Really from reruns on TV

AND ads in old garage sale magazines

Fake sixties

Mask our leaders' sleaze

Is it really a new beginning

With confederate Kennedys?

Fake Camelot

Before everything went wrong

Nostalgia for an age

That never existed

Do you remember

The Summer of Love

Vietnam, mini-skirts and drugs

Rebellion was so much fun

Tell your own kids

Just Say No to that

Nostalgia for an age

That never existed

Turn that MTV racket off

So your folks can listen to "classic" rock

Mellow out to the same old songs

Again and again and again

Do you wonder or even care

How you wound up such a square

If ya can't stand the Big Chill
Get out of the freezer
Can't stand the Big Chill
everything old is new again
It all comes back, jsut wait your turn
But somehow the magic's always missing
Giving up on future dreams
To dwell on rosy memories
Will make sure your best days
Are in the past
Nostalgia for an age that never existed
Being the first punk in your town
Outlaw #1
For the t-shirt you had on
Now you stay home
Mad at the whole scene
For refusing to freeze
In 1983
Why can't all the old bands reform
Stick to playing their old songs
It ain't punk
If it ain't just like the old days
That was then, this is now

Suckling up to the sacred cow

Can leave ya stuck in the mud

With its remains

Nostalgia for an age that never existed

Nostalgia for an age that never existed
