I see your soul
I see your guilt
I've seen every circumstance
That had it's hand in how you were built
You're emptied out
A hollow frame
All your hope has gone along with any love to claim

And in your heart you wish for death
I'm grieved you find only pain and cruelty in every single breath
Rise again up off the ground
All the stones lie around with no accuser to be found

Your joy has come like the rising sun
I leave the ninety nine every time to find the one
Singing comes in the new day's warmth
With passing night unveils your fire-tried form

I've made my face to shine
My countenance your guiding light
I am the Way, the Truth, the Life.
