"City Lights"

Wake me up with a smile
Haven't had the head to be with Someone for a while
See me off as I go
I'll be coming back again further up the road

And I can see a hint of apprehension in your eyes
But don't believe what history belies
The holes among the truth are like
The stars along the sky
They're easier to see without the city lights

All I offer is a sal that I can move
If I prevail upon a wind like yours I'd fill it up with you Where you take me I will go head for the far horizon north
We can cast along the way until we rudder up the shore
