So you're sticky and you're young
And your head is like a sponge
You go to keep yourself
Keep you from becoming one

Get up off of your knees

You feel a tick in your stomach
And it's eating towards your heart
A subtle, constant shiver
From the bottom to the top

Get up off of your knees
Someone needs to be an anthem for the end of suffering?

As revealed in the end
There are parallels in life
If there's fission in the bomb
Then there's fission in your mind

Don't melt down on me
Someone needs to be an anthem for the end of
suffering?
Hang on to me
Don't disintegrate as you're discovering

There's a man in a dream
Doing laps around a lake
Busy talking to himself
Living, dying just the same

Don't think he was me
Just I believe the middle takes the man
Out to the edge and then I don't want to wait

Yeah, I can be a wall around you
Any covering I'll find you
Hang on to me
Someone needs to be an anthem for the end of
suffering?

Paint the caves of your existence
With the colors of your mind
Find a color for commitment
One that satisfies

Sounds easy to me

Yeah, I can be a wall around you
Any covering I'll find you
Hang on to me
Don't disintegrate while you're discovering
Hang on to me
Someone needs to be an anthem for the end of suffering?
