It seemed so strange that so quickly, I could trust someone like me
I opened up and let you in, so you could see my pain begin
You just smiled and looked at me, you understood instantly
I'd finally found someone who knew, what kind of pain that I'd been through

You haunt me over and over again
I can feel you in my brain
Over and over again
Things will never be the same
Over and over again
You have helped dilute my pain
Over and over again
Though you're gone you still remain

Even though, romantically, it's a shame we'll never be You have touched upon a soul that once was just a deep dark hole
Though all you did was talk with me, your precious face has set me free
No longer crushed, weak and bruised, no longer will I be used

You haunt me over and over again
I can feel you in my brain
Over and over again
Things will never be the same
Over and over again
you have helped dilute my pain
Over and over again
Though you're gone you still remain

You have touched upon a soul
I once was broken now am whole
Things will never be the same
Your face is burned within my brain (your face)

You haunt me over and over again, I can feel you in my brain
Over and over again
Things will never be the same
Over and over again
You have helped dilute my pain
Over and over again
Though you're gone you still remain
brain
Over and over again
Things will never be the same
Over and over again
you have helped dilute my pain
Over and over again
Though you're gone you still remain
