"Again And Again"

She takes my hand
Takes it around her as she listens in her car
Misunderstands as her eyes fall like a star,
She says she needs just a little more
It's almost dawn and the talk is getting slow
Time to cut through the lock on the door
You could have got away, but you just had to steal some more
You tell me "I want to leave you again and again,
But I don't want to leave you again
" Something I said must have hit her like a flashing red light
Give her the reason to fly on me
She's dancing with the girls tonight
Three A.M. and she wraps herself around me and says,
"I want to leave you again and again, but I don't want to leave you again"
