Fields are white in snowy spring and I can't Remember the last time I've seen her.
The highway is still cold and wet and I can't Forget the way I had to leave her.
And every passing day, she flickers and she fades.
Is someone to catch her when she falls from the heavens?

Chorus:

And I'll love her yet, though she has done me wrong.
And I'll bring her back, though she has been long gone.
And I'll always be her Broken hearted savior.

And every heavy night takes out the little life that's left within her.
Every man she gives her love, he takes it, and leaves
her with a dinner.
Our love was once a flame, now I'm just a forgotten
name,
Am I the only one to blame for having, loving her?

Chorus
