Well I was in a place once Where if you wanted something then you took it for yourself Cause that was the way of doing things to keep the balance perfect But I, I never did it

And I, I want what you got And I don't ever want to share 'Cause it's capital and if you're poor, you've got yourself to blame In such a righteous country

Just play an American song Just play an American song

I'm never wrong And I don't ever want to change You know that I just want to live by standards high beyond my means Of course, I won't admit it

Just play an American song Just play an American song Just play an American song Just play an American song

I defend my family honor And I'm not ashamed to tell you That I don't care what happens to the rest of all the world No I, I just pretend to
