I stand in the light that I cannot see
I walk on the ground that I cannot feel
I listen for you when you're calling me
I learn to love when all I got is lust

This life when all we have is purpose
This lie when all we have is gone until
This life when all we have is purpose
This lie when all we have is gone until

We can see clear
Nothing in the way but life itself
We can see clear
Nothing in the way but the future

The future is in my hands
With the weight of the past
The future is in my hands
With the weight of the past

This life when all we have is purpose
This lie when all we have is gone until
This life when all we have is purpose
This lie when all we have is gone until

We can see clear
Nothing in the way but life itself
We can see clear
Nothing in the way but the future

I stand in the light that I cannot see
I listen for you when you're calling me

The future is in my hands
With the weight of the past
The future is in my hands
With the weight of the past
