It's a bubble if you can feel it if you're not too numb to dream It's connected to everything
The crop, the cream,
The sugarcane, space and the sea.

So leave it, breathe it, so feel it, cuz it's the only thing that's yours We're all in store for a big surprise if we don't have a look, open our eyes

Now did you really think that you were that really big?
And did you really think that it was all really small?
That you caused no effect on the things that you reflect
That you were disconnected from the meaning of it all

Now there could come a day where this could disappear
From all our lack of sense activity, Forgot one there,

it grows on you, and it grows in me
Just like the resin in a bud of a tree
We've been dehydrated, our roots been lifted up with no more soil touch almost the whole crops
Been sold down the dark cave, the lightless, black black hole.

Now you've heard the stories of the great big wrath and the reappearing hints of the stories of our past Now there you thought that you were that really big and there you thought that it was all really small Now there could come a day where this could
disappear
From all our lack of sense activity, forgot one there Now there could come a day where this could wash away
and in our dreams is where we'll stay

Now there could come a day where this could
disappear
From all our lack of sense activity, Forgot one there,

it grows on you, and it grows in me
Just like the resin in a bud of a tree
We've been dehydrated, our roots been lifted up
with no more soil touch almost the whole crops
Been sold down the dark cave, the lightless, black
black hole.
