I'll drive all night and still be nowhere by daylight
I'll drive all night not a single soul in sight
Tonight I know
The highway's just another dead-end road
So far left to go, I'll drive all night

A thousand miles, straight into the western sky
A thousand miles, a desert tumbles by
It's all the same
A ghost town where nobody has a name
On an endless interstate, I'll drive all night

Maybe tomorrow, might be the day
When I leave this road to stay

And I'll drive all night with static on the radio
I'll drive all night with a voice from long ago
I've lost in time
Sounds like it still nineteen fifty nine
There's no end of the line I'll drive all night

A thousand miles, riding on the wind a while
A thousand miles, silence on all sides
Black sky above
So deep a million stars are not enough
To fill it halfway up, I'll drive all night

Maybe tomorrow, might be the day
When I leave this road to stay, to stay

I'll drive all night, straight into the western sky
I'll drive all night, the desert tumbles by
Tonight I know
The highway's just another dead-end road
So far left to go, I'll drive all night

So far left to go, I'll drive all night
So far left to go, I'll drive all night
