Eric's room gets too small one night
(He)
Takes his whole apartment outside
Down at his desk he sits and writes
Under a streetlight

One starry night just like tonight when these
City lights seem like candlelight
One starry night somewhere between midnight
And sunrise everything will be alright

On the steps someone plays guitar
Carrying into the dark
Far off a saxophone begins following along
Writing the same song

One starry night just like tonight when these
City lights seem like candlelight
One starry night somewhere between midnight
And sunrise everything will be alright

Angela hears the music play
Sees Eric and suddenly the lights change
Dare she let her heart take this one chance?
She says, do you want to dance?
