Snow is falling from the sky in the middle of July
Sun was shining in my eyes again last night
Alarm goes off without a sound
The silence is so loud, something isn't right

Footsteps echo down the hall, no one's there at all
Dial your number but your voice says, "I'm not home"
Everything is inside out, I don't know what it's about

It keeps getting stranger by the day
Stranger by the day
It keeps getting stranger by the day
Stranger by the day

Goin' for a walk outside to see what I can find
No reflections in the windows I pass by
It feels hotter in the shade, water's runnin' up the drain
Something's goin' on

Conversations with a mime stared at by the blind
Imagination must be workin' overtime
The world is upside down, everything is turned around

It keeps getting stranger by the day
Stranger by the day
It keeps getting stranger by the day
Stranger by the day

By the time I reach your door, I can't take anymore
I just happened to be in your neighborhood
I'm the one who gets surprised
I don't believe my eyes, your alibi's no good

Whatever happened to the world
Whatever happened to the girl, I thought I knew
It just can't be true, I guess I'm losing you, you

Stranger by the day, stranger by the day
It keeps gettin' stranger by the day
Stranger by the day, stranger by the day
Stranger by the day, stranger by the day
Yeah, yeah
