The night is warm as I lie asleep a life is lost when they broke in and the air is cold and my skin is bare the door swings open as i fight for life my hands are locked and my eyes are blind and this frigid air is losing me and these concrete walls have it all locked in and the time I count starts tonight

I am here holdingThe night is warm as I lie asleep
and the time I count starts tonight

I am here holding
I am holding my hands to the sky and wishing for the answers and these bars are black and i can't see through and this empty chair is my new friend and you cast my eyes away from the day these nights are dark yet blinding too you say you wont I know you will lock this door and lose the key I sit as stone and await the end these cold dark night have me locked in

to set me free
its so wrong its so right but it'll set me free.
I am holding my hands to the sky
