Gimme shelter, protect me from the burning rays of the sun.

Keep away the evil, be it originated by nature or man.

Gimme shelter, help me that so many cruel deeds won't be done.

Hug me, put my head in your lap, guard me from all that you can.

Gimme shelter, embrace me, don't let the coldness come in.

Help me, set an end to the fear that thrills me so strong.

Give me your warmth, let me feel the softness of your skin.

Gimme shelter, keep an eye on how I'm moving along.

Gimme shelter, don't let me die with thirst, have my lips wetted

With the dew of your kisses, keeping my poor withered soul alive.

Gimme shelter, people point and laugh at me, having me fretted.

Take pity on me, let me forget the ugly worries of daily strife.

Gimme shelter, show me the beauty, the bliss of your love.

Stay with me, don't even think of going away, leaving me behind.

Gimme shelter, explain me the reason for what's in the sky above.

If I were unable to watch your winsome face, I'd better be blind.
