Iâ€™m still learning how to untie love
And Iâ€™ve pulled apart almost everyone
But teeth and claws and all unwanted dreams
Theyâ€™re still binding you to me

I donâ€™t blame you
I donâ€™t mind
The way Iâ€™ll forget about you in time

This morning I awoke to the sound of birds
And I understood all their words
They spoke of the sky and tales of when
Theyâ€™d dance on clouds and fight the wind

And all those sides of you Iâ€™ve seen
I donâ€™t know which to believe
I much prefer being alone
With the birds and their songs
Cuz they wonâ€™t leave

I remember winter in Nemours
And making love on your bedroom floor
Those memories wonâ€™t ever leave
They keep on coming back to me

Love is like a host
It swears to provide
But the favor expires in time

Last night I dreamed you came back
Your sweet blue eyes, they had turned to black
You were smiling, bruised, and scratched
Youâ€™d been had
And now youâ€™ve gone bad

And all those sides of you Iâ€™ve seen
Which would you have me believe
I am trying to prefer being alone
With the birds
