G-d gave me these words which I injected into my veins.

They come to mind by circulating past my warm brain.
They help me when I'm low on power when I'm low on gas.

When the weight of this life's a pain
You know in the elbow.

Believer don't throw your true words into the bin
Let them enter your life's support capsule of skin.
Let those words travel deep inside where there is on light.

Like a flame pilot flame flickers
Till the time is right.

Be patient and watch the new moons come and then go.

Wait through the seasons the time it will melt like the snow.

Let's keep holy doing what it is right, walking in the light.

Then our words they will come to pass
Does the sun give light?
