The stars above shine down below
The fever you hold on this night deathly cold
He can feel from this side of the door
He can feel Eleanor

He said, sun don't rise...
He said sun don't shine
He said don't bring tomorrow to justify tonight
The moon is full - the stars are bright and the sky is a poisonous garden tonight.

Sip your tequila. Give me some time to unlearn all I've learned for the spring to unwind
and then came your sweet gentle mouth
I began to move mine.
They knew with the dawn -
They knew with the day They knew what they had would be young naked prey and attacked from all sides by a world filled with poison and hate

Out of this world
Out of this time.
Out of control,
They were out of their mines.
The moon is full and the stars are bright,
The sky is a poisonous garden tonight.

Eleanor trembles, Eleanor moans.
Somehow, this body is someone she always has known She cries tears on his chest
O so silent and slow -

She said please don't go. Please don't go -

And she cried and she died in his arms
And he cried nevermore
The moon is full, the stars are bright
tonight.
