Once upon a recent time
With days to kill a long long drive
The D tour to where he once was mine
I found myself back in Salida.

There was a man with eyes like a sea
The green and gold of summer weed
Who held his heart between his teeth
There was a man who once shows me
Brick fall in at the back of the bar
.. like a river fall in his arms
His arrows stared tour me apart
Off my poor spoke both their hearts
By the second time around
We held each other underground
In the shadows of the city lights
My ring burns skin his covered eyes
Like a dream that rolls down hill
We tumbled at first as we spill
Still we try to hold on to the wind,
I never saw him again.

Now with time to spare the borrowed car,
Skin tight aggrieving heart
From another love another time,
I retrace the steps I left behind
Went back to that mountain town,
I whispered his name of the threatening clouds,
Try to counter up that underground
Afraid to speak his name out loud
It was a place where time had slow
Now it's cafes are vintage clothes
And I knew who I'd come here to let go,
And left long gone.

We tasted then with desire and rage
Like actors on off road wing,
This time I knew more was it stake alone I chase regret and age
I try to trapped them in my songs
But I always got the time and wrongs

So now I'm chasing down where I belong
To pay my dues before I'm gone

Chasing all the tight ends
I'm chasing them down so the blurring blend into one great love
I'll make the men and pull back from the edge again
And heal the thing that stuck and broke
The nut it's always in my throat
A country on the Virgin and over throw
Rusty belly of the sun can boat
And in the last light of that winter's day
I little match and I watch the flames
From the biggest fire that I could make
Made a ..breath, river..
The hods and lines still in time
The cumbering, traveled a long way from Tennessee
To settle this free.

Once upon a reason time
The days to kill a long long drive
The D tour to where he once was mine
I found myself back in Salida,
In Salida.
In Salida.
