You wake in a cloud every morning
Ready to find somewhere to hide
Turn on the news to thunderstorm warnings
Prepare for the worst you might find

You open your oversized umbrella
Like mothering arms it keeps you safe
Watching your feet you can't tell that
There is no rain

[Chorus:]

Step out of the shade and look at the day
Out here the weather's better
Now the sky comes into view
Step into the sun, let go of the rung
You've been hanging onto
Then take hold of something new
You might find you

You say you are happy with your choices
You've worked for years on your art
You found a direction and your own voice

So what are you hiding in your heart?

Step out of the shade and look at the day
Out here the weather's better
Now the sky comes into view
Step into the sun, let go of the rung
You've been hanging onto
Then take hold of something new
You might find you

You might like it better there
With the sun shining on your hair

Step out of the shade and look at the day
Out here the weather's better
Now the sky comes into view
Step into the sun, let go of the rung
You've been hanging onto
Then take hold of something new

You might find you
