"To The Dawn"

To the dawn.
Perhaps you feel the sadness looking to the dawn.
But it will be better leave the whips.
The hope's gone while you are keeping on the road.
Listen to me son, the sun will rise again.
I can feel in your eyes the despair.
Raise and fall once again it's just to live.
When the wind blows your face, you are going to reach the Dream again
Leave all the ropes and fears; fly away in to the sky.

Like a seasonal bird, just reach the sky.
Move your feet to find the road, now it's time to turn Around
Laugh and tears, the way to go, you must do it on your Own.
Recall who's no more there, and if you feel the Strangeness, take the meaning of his left sight. Honor
His given blood
