I like your blouse, you like my shoes, small talk fills the air
I try to find a dumb excuse, just to touch your hair
You tell me about your boyfriend and how he treats you really nice
But memories cover my ears and I don't hear a word you say
Has it really been a year, it seems like yesterday
And to me, you're still my girl, to me you're still my girl
What can we do, but laugh about the way things ended up We sit and watch the sun go down, drink wine out a paper cup
And ofcourse we both agree no matter what, we'll still be friends
But how comes it feels really strange when you suddenly touch my hand
I watch our shadows slowly fade, I want the day to end and
To me, you're still my girl, to me you're still my girl We're walking on, discussing life and all of you found friends
The future never seems so bright and I want to but I can't Stop thinking about the times when nothing mattered much at all It's getting late, it's getting cold and I let you have my coat
I hide around a corner, watch you walking down the road
There goes my girl, there goes my girl
