In between two brownstone buildings
Brick walls covered all in ivy leaves
I was waiting in the doorway
Counting people on the city streets
Whispering your name
Whispering your name

And this is where you stood
This is where we stayed
This is the very same place
Very same place
I found myself

And this is where we lived
This is where you'd lie
This is the very same place
Very same place we
Fell asleep on piano keys

Oh, oh
I left my heart in, I left my heart in
A place that I know well
This building on Commonwealth

Nights grew long and
We'd grow tired of basement walls
We'd take to Boston's streets
Days wore on for hours, endless
We'd grow restless in the August heat
Follow you, follow me

And this is where you stood
This is where we stayed
This is the very same place
Very same place
I found myself

And this is where we lived
This is where you'd lie
This is the very same place
Very same place we

Fell asleep on piano keys

Oh, oh,
A place that I know well
This building on Commonwealth

I really felt it when we were walking on Boylston
And I kept you close to me all the way down Newbury
And when we would go back home
I'd just want you alone
I held the elevator, just to be with you longer

And this is where we stood
This is where we stayed
Very same place we
Found ourselves

And this is where we lived
This is where we'd lie
Very same place we

Oh
A place that I know well...
