And she was just
Another lullaby
With candlelight eyes
Singing you to sleep
Drowsy with heat

And you were just
A warning to avoid
Asleep upon the soil
Holding onto night
Fading with its' light
Fading with its' light

And your heart was a bird
Scared still and alone
And the only thing
She ever cared for
With wings tattered and torn
Beating unevenly
Beating unevenly

And your heart was a bird
Scared still and alone
And the only thing
She ever cared for
And your heart was forgotten
Alone on the floor
She picked it up
Brushed it of dust
Brushed it of dust

And you were just
A love-drunk vagabond
With little reason to hold on
Pressed against the glass
Watching people pass
Watching people pass

And your heart was a bird
Scared still and alone
And the only thing

She ever cared for
With wings tattered and torn
Beating unevenly
Beating unevenly

And your heart was a bird
Scared still and alone
And the only thing
She ever cared for
And your heart was forgotten
Alone on the floor
She picked it up
Brushed it of dust
Brushed it of dust

And you both intermingled
Beautiful, and as simple
And you both intermingled
Beautiful and simple as dust
As dust

And you were just
Another lullaby
With candlelight eyes
Singing her to sleep
Singing her to sleep
