How are you? That sort of feeling I like
Is a little embarrassing
Now, over eighty memories are existing in my head
Everyone's together now

I get a little sulky at times
Although I know I should be nice
Every morning seems so fresh
We can always see each other

The blue sky and rollerblades
A throbbing feeling in my chest
The wind is constantly blowing against me
I'm full of energy today

"Thank you" I whisper under my breath
You sure I'm doing this properly?
What kind of time is this, but I have to accept
Tomorrow there'll be one person alone

A little bit of patience would help
As I stand quietly by a ridge
The rise and fall of the evening sun is expected
By me

Be in good spirits, right? Now, but always
Following along
The west wind's way home
I'm full of energy today

The blue sky and rollerblades
At the end of the story
The west wind's way home
I'm full of energy today
